JR Leaders Event 7

Hi 4-H members and families,

Wisconsin 4-H just re-released a promise called the Green Guarantee. This is not new, however, the lingo has not been used in many years. 4-H has always upheld these traits, and now we have a easy catchphrase to use and remember it by.

WISCONSIN 4-H GREEN GUARANTEE

In Wisconsin, 4-H members will have the opportunity to:

- Develop positive relationships with peers and adults;
- Be actively involved in their own learning;
- Make meaningful contributions through community service and leadership;
- Develop skills that will help them succeed;
- Recognize, understand and appreciate others;
- Have fun.

As we think about planning and holding our 4-H activities we need to be aware of this Green Guarantee and asking ourselves are we upholding this promise to ourselves and the members?

Some ways to encourage this at club meetings is to ensure youth officers are organizing and running the club meetings, have icebreakers and actives for youth to get to know each other, involve all members in planning for club events.

Sincerely,

Katie Sterros

New 4-H Volunteer Training

If any interested adult who would like to become a registered 4-H volunteer staring for the new 4-H year, can contact Katie Stenroos to schedule a 1 hour long in person Volunteer training to be held at the Extension Office. In addition to attending a training session, interested volunteers need to complete the 4-H enrollment process on https://wi.4honline.com/, pass a background check ran through the University of Wisconsin-Madison Extension, complete an online Mandated Reporter training and agree to follow Volunteer Behavior Expectations. Please contact Katie Stenroos if you are interested in becoming a registered 4-H volunteer by emailing katelin.stenroos@wisc.edu or calling at 715-395-1365.

Youth for the Quality Care of Animals: Quality Care = Quality Meat

Excellent quality meat is not just a result of the breed or feed. It has everything to do with excellent animal husbandry, care and well-being of the animal. Youth for the Quality Care of Animals (YQCA) is a nationally developed, researched based program that certifies youth in the principles of this care. Those youth that show and sell livestock at the County Fairs across the state are encouraged, and often required to take the YQCA course as a condition of participating in the fair.

The three tenants of the YQCA program are Food Safety, Animal Well Being and Character. The topics explored within the course include:

- Providing Quality Feed, Administering Animal Health Products, Herd Health Plan
- The Basics of Animal Care, Animal Handling and Food Quality, Ethics and Animal Well Being
- Youth Leadership and Service, Emergency Action Plan, Environmental Stewardship

YQCA certification will be required for youth that are planning to enter their livestock meat project in the Head of the Lakes Fair.

Youth interested in the food industry or animal science are welcomed to take the online YQCA course provided by UW Madison, Division of Extension.

Youth can register on-line to begin the class and achieve certification at: https://

VOLUNTEER CORNER

Essential Elements of Positive Youth Development

The four essential elements of belonging, mastery, independence, and generosity form the foundation of positive youth development. Are these elements fostered in the 4-H club?

Belonging

Youth need to know they are accepted by others and experience a sense of connection to others in a group. Research shows that it is important for youth to have opportunities for long-term, consistent relationships with adults other than their parents. A 4-H club fosters belonging by encouraging youth to form friendships with peers and bond with caring adults who encourage and help them grow in positive ways. 4-H also allows youth to be part of a supportive environment where collaborative learning is encouraged.

In the 4-H club...

- Do youth participate equally with adults in planning, implementing, and evaluating club activities?
- Is time provided for both youth and adults to interact and have fun together?

Mastery

Youth experience mastery when they develop skills, knowledge, and attitudes that enable them to succeed. To develop their self-confidence, young people need to believe that they are capable and experience success at solving problems. Youth need safe settings for making mistakes, taking risks, and focusing on self-improvement. A 4-H club fosters mastery by providing many opportunities for project work, evaluation, and feedback. Through experiential education, youth explore new skills in topics of interest to them and learn how to transfer those skills to other life situations.

In the 4-H club...

- Do members have the opportunity to practice skills until they master them?
- Do members receive feedback and recognition for their accomplishments?

Independence

Youth need to know they are able to influence people and events through decision-making and action. Independence refers to an adolescent's growing ability to think, feel, make decisions, and act on her or his own. By gaining a sense of independence, youth develop personal responsibility and self-discipline. A 4-H club fosters independence by providing youth with decision-making and leadership experiences including serving as a club officer, mentor, teacher, committee chair, ambassador, and youth leader, among others.

In the 4-H club...

- Are youth challenged to attempt new things or learn new skills?
- Do members have the opportunity to apply what they've learned in 4-H to their everyday lives?

Generosity

Young people need to feel their lives have meaning and purpose. They need opportunities to connect to their communities and give back to others. As part of this process, they gain an understanding of others' needs and learn how to respond to these needs. Generosity may also include the development of values such as compassion and tolerance for diversity. A 4-H club fosters generosity by encouraging members to use their skills to improve others' lives by mentoring younger members, identifying community needs, and participating in service projects. 4-H experiences should also teach youth to accept differences, resolve conflict, and empathize with others.

In the 4-H club...

- Do youth and adults work together to practice service to others?
- Are members recognized for their community service contributions?

4-H Project Night

Thank you to everyone who attended the 4-H Project Night at Northwestern High School on January 20th!

Thank you to our wonderful youth and adults who volunteered to teach sessions!
